Part 3 of an article written by Clarence Hayes, JR. How to best support your pastor. #3- Be Easy to Work With

No one enjoys working with troublesome people. This is not just true of pastors; this is true of everyone. Someone told me this a while ago and I strive to live by this rule – be easy to work with. One of the best ways to make your pastor's job more enjoyable is by not adding a burden to them. It is hard enough finding volunteers to help in the church. The last thing they need is a volunteer who is intolerable to work with. If there is a need and you can help, then do it. Don't do it with grumbling or complaining, but with kindness in your heart. Trust me, they will appreciate it, and it can be one less thing they need to worry about.
